GETTYSBURG HIGH SCHOOL

GETTYSBURG, PENNSYLVANIA

THE SCHOOL BOARD

Seated-Paul Rohrbaugh, Charles S. Black (Pres.), L. C. Keefauver (Superintendent of Schools), Ralph Z. Oyler.

Standing-Arthur E. Hutchison, Charles P. Bender, Mahlon P. Hartzell (Sec.), Charles M. Sheely (V. Pres.).

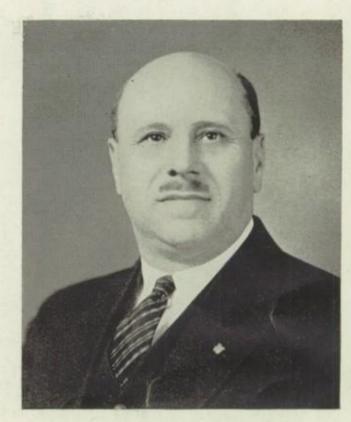

Members of the school board are truly the guardians of the birthright of the girls and the boys of today, who determine the destiny of the nation of tomorrow.

TO THE CLASS OF 1945

Gloom still overshadows most of the world because of the ravages of war. Lives and resources have been sacrificed to retain our democratic way of life. In time possibly most of the material things will be replaced. This cannot be true of the lost lives, the maimed bodies, and the warped minds.

The survival of civilization is dependent upon making war impossible in the future. It will call for many sacrifices. It will demand clear thinking. Here as in war there can be no slackers. Everyone must give his best. Everyone has something to contribute toward making his community, his nation, his world a better place. What will be your contribution?

L. C. KEEFAUVER
Superintendent of Schools

DOCTOR LLOYD C. KEEFAUVER

TO THE CLASS OF 1945

You people who finish high school are fortunate as many have not had this opportunity. Even this amount of schooling will not be sufficient to enable you to meet the demands and solve the problems in the immediate future.

I urge you to continue your training should you have the opportunity.

All honor to those of you who enter the armed forces wherever you may be.

G. W. LEFEVER Principal of high school

FACULTY MEMBERS ON LEAVE

Major J. Melchoir Sheads entered the infantry in January, 1942. He received his training at Camp Claiborne, Miss., Camp Shelby, Miss., and Fort Benning, Ga. He is now in the European war theater.

SENIOR ADVISERS

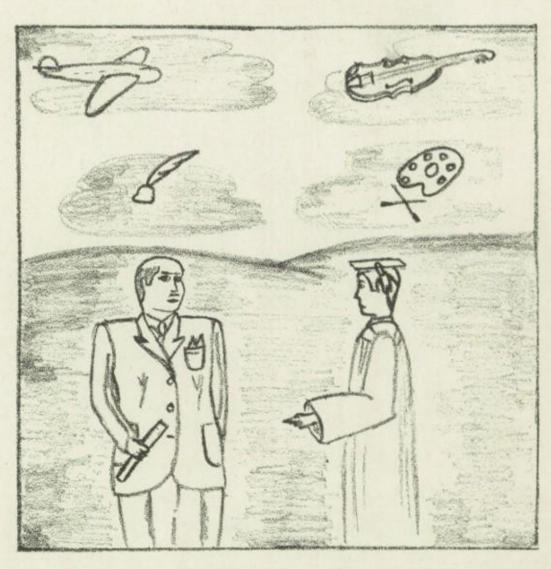

MR. WOLF

MRS. HEINTZELMAN

During the first three years of our high school days, Miss Scott and Mr. Wolf served us faithfully in every way. They were always understanding and helpful in the various situations that arose. At the beginning of our senior year, Miss Scott became the dramatic coach, and was forced to resign as our adviser. Mrs. Heintzelman assumed the responsibility, and she and Mr. Wolf have led us to a successful finish of our high school career. To all of them we extend our sincerest appreciation for the fine leadership they have given us.

1944 FOOTBALL

With only a few lettermen returning from the winless season of 1943, Gettysburg High School's football hopes were not very high. As it happened, the team ran true to form. During the season only one game of eight was won. The team at times showed great ability on the defense but was finally overcome by superior manpower. One of the highlights of the season was a 90 yd. runback of an intercepted pass by Dick Fidler for a touchdown against Waynesboro.

The Junior Varsity squad had a fairly successful season in winning one, losing two, and tying two.

FOOTLOOSE

Family troubles form the basis of the three act comedy, "Footloose." Emily Early is a domineering mother who tries to arrange her children's lives to suit her own taste. The children rebel and, after many arguments, persuade Emily and her husband, Richard, to take a trip. Hope, the oldest daughter, takes charge and tries to guide the family over one pit-fall after another.

Everything turns out nicely in the end, as the Earlys return home to find their family well able to take care of themselves.

The play, directed by Miss Ruth McIlhenny and Miss Ruth Scott, was presented by the Mask and Wig for the benefit of the Red Cross.

WHAT A LIFE

A three act comedy, "What a Life," brought the trials and tribulations of Henry Aldrich to the Gettysburg High School auditorium. The mischievous Henry is a typical high school boy who is continually confounding everyone, including his parents, and Mr. Bradley, the high school principal. Henry's attempt to ask Barbara Pearson for a date are complicated by the presence of George Bigelow, a conceited, athletic student, and the results prove to be very amusing.

Stolen band instruments and a romance between Mr. Bradley's secretary and Mr. Nelson, the assistant principal, serve to further complicate the plot.

The play was presented by the Mask and Wig and was directed by Miss Ruth Scott. Receipts from the play were used to purchase stage lighting equipment.

ONLY AN ORPHAN GIRL

An old-fashioned melodrama came to the Gettysburg High School auditorium in the senior class production, "Only an Orphan Girl." Employing all the melodramatic devices such as leaning, "asides," restrained actions, the play centers about the efforts of Arthur Rutherford, the villain from the city, to secure the inherited fortune of Nellie, the orphan girl.

Fortunately for the beautiful heroine, a stalwart farm lad is in the nick of time to protect her from the villain's advances. But Arthur, and his fair wife Ethel, stop at nothing, not even murder, to secure the fortune. It takes all the efforts of the hero, Dick Perkins, and the intervention of the neighbor farmin' woman, Amy Appleby, to finally settle matters.

The play was the first of its type to be presented in Gettysburg High School and was directed by Miss Ruth Scott. Receipts helped defray expenses of the Cannon-Aid.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

Mrs. Perkins, saintly and solemn Lucy, little ray of sunshine, the neighbor widow's daughter
Nellie, the orphan, pure as the driven snow
Swem Perkins, father, rock-ribbed New England farmer	Richard Altemose
Arthur Rutherford, a dirty dog (apologies to the nice members of the	canine class),
	William Cromer
Ethel Rutherford, fair and fallen spouse of Arthur	Barbara Wolff
Dick Perkins, clean-cut farm lad, champion of valor and integrity	William Sperry
Widow Appleby, rough but with-a-heart-of-gold farmin' woman
